BRITISH LABOR

WITH ROYALTY

Heads of Labor Party and Wives Bring

Criticism by Attending
Dinner With King

COUNTRY SEES STEP OF TORIES TOWARD COMPROMISE

By Milton Bronner
LONDON, April 5.—Jack Clynes was a mill hand in Oldham. Mary Elizabeth Harper also worked there. He was 18 and she was 16. They fell in love. After six years Clynes left the mill for a better job. He became organizer of the Gas Workers' Union at $7.50 a week. Then he married. Jim Thomas started work on the Great Western Railway when he was nine years old. When he was making $6 a week he married Agnes Hill. The young couple kept house in two rooms. At 11:30 every night as the young engineer ran the mail train past his home he used to blow a long, loud blast on the whistle, just to let his little bride know he was thinking of her.

Phil Snowden had been unfortunate. He had a regular job in the government service. But he gave that up to take a chance as a free lance in the newspaper world. It was then he met Ethel Annakin, a pretty English school teacher. Soon afterwards they were married.

All of these three couples have known hard times. All have known what it is to count their means down to the last penny. All have known what it is to run on a humble home on humble resources.

And the other day they put their feet under the mahogany in the magnificent town house of Viscount and Viscountess Astor where they dined with the king and queen!

Jack and Jim and Phil and their wives are still poor. But they are "somebody."

The three husbands are leaders of the Labor Party in Great Britain, the second party in the Parliament and therefore the official opposition to the present government.

The present Tory government has had three recent smashing defeats in "elections." Three members of its cabinet are defeated by Labor candidates. And many comfortable Tories had cold shivers.

But the king and queen didn't.

The king is above parties and doesn't play politics. But he does play the role of the constitutional monarch who likes to meet the leaders of all the parties in his kingdom. That's why he told Lady Nancy Astor he would be glad to meet the Labor leaders at dinner.

When they came they made a couple of new friends, but lost a host of old ones.

British laborites don't seem to like the idea of their leaders hobnobbing with royalty. Perhaps it was jealousy; perhaps fear; but they made the three who attended the dinner do a lot of explaining. For they felt that they didn't belong. And Jack, Jim and Phil weren't sure until they got to Viscount Astor's home.

People who dine with the king and queen don't talk about what was said and done, but I am informed that when the gentlemen lingered in the dining room over their port and cigars, Mary Clynes, Agnes Thomas and Ethel Snowden had a great time with Queen Mary Windsor talking about George Henry Hubert, his weight, his progress, his brightness.

Who is George Henry Hubert?
He is the queen's first grandchild, the son of Princess Mary.

BOSWORTH AGAIN IS CANDIDATE FOR STATE LEGISLATURE

Republican Leader From Bell County
Announces Will Work for Better
Roads and Schools, Fight
Coal Tonnage

WANTS LAW TO FURTHER MUNICIPAL IMPROVEMENT

Honorable Joseph F. Bosworth, has decided to become again candidate for the Republican nomination for Bell County to the state legislature, in which body he has served long and efficiently, and in a statement made today outlines the program which he will further if chosen as Bell county's representative. Judge Bosworth was minority leader in the house last session and speaker session before last. He has served a number of years in the senate and house and is one of the most widely known political figures in the state. Because of his great work in furthering roads in the state he is known as Kentucky's Father of Good Roads.

His statement follows:
"I certainly appreciate the very complimentary expressions from so many of the citizens of Pineville, Middlesboro and Bell County as to my past services as their Representative, as well as showing their faith and confidence in me by asking that I become a candidate again for the Republican nomination to represent this county in the next legislature.

If a coal tonnage tax were imposed in this state it would materially injure if not destroy or put to a very great competitive disadvantage, the only industry in Bell county and eastern Kentucky, and ruin the business interests of our county, which means the home, livelihood and business, either directly or indirectly to about all the citizens in this section of our state, and yet the candidates for Governor are making this a paramount issue in their campaign speeches, and this question will come up for settlement in the next session of our General Assembly.

Road Issue At Critical Period
The road question is at its critical period and will also come up for action at that session, in which will be involved the fifty million state road bond issue and the distribution of this fund for road construction in the various parts of our state, and the best interests of Bell county would require that this question be settled in a way that will insure the completion of the original state primary system of public roads in Bell county, that is, that the road between Pineville and Middlesboro and the Knox county line be properly reconstructed and satisfactorily and materially improved from what it is at this time; that the Harlan road be completed and that the road from the Clay county line via Red Bird to Pineville shall be completely constructed.

Our school laws as they are today afford fairly good educational opportunity for the city boy or girl, but our country school system today, as compared to the city schools is a great failure and does not offer that proper educational advantages to which every boy and girl of our great Commonwealth is entitled, whether he lives in the city or country.

State Aid For Cities
It is acknowledged by all that Middlesboro is seriously in need of a proper sewerage system and much street improvement, which at this time on account of the high cost that goes into this kind of improvement, is very expensive and in order to make the cost as easy as possible, there should be a law passed at the next session of our legislature which will permit payment to be made upon the ten year installment plan.

All of these will be questions for the next legislature to pass upon and be made into laws. Bell county with its very increased population has become a very important factor among the greatest counties of our state, and it is most important that all these questions should be put into effect in such a way that Bell county will receive what she is entitled to and not be placed at any disadvantage.

If the good Republicans of this county, who have so often honored me, be of the opinion that by reason of my many years legislative experience, I

Camp Labor Supervisor Held for Murder—Guards Testify Tabert Died From Severe Floggings

By Associated Press
MADISON, Fla. Apr. 11.—The grand jury here today began an investigation into the death of Martin Tabert, of North Dakota, while serving a sentence at a convict labor camp fourteen months ago. Walter Higginbotham, supervisor of the camp is in jail here charged with the murder. J. W. Jackson, guard, said Tabert's body was a solid mass of sores while deep welts stood out on his back caused by a lash. Both guards agreed they counted ninety licks that fell on Tabert. Glen Thompson asserts Tabert died at the result of flogging. He declared at the time that Tabert was almost blinded from malaria when Tabert was ordered to lay down on the ground where he was whipped. He asserted he was whipped again that night and died three days later. Tabert was buried in the clothing of a negro convict who escaped the previous night.

LOUISVILLE, Apr. 1.—It became known here today, that the Atherton distillery at Atherton, Nelson county, was robbed in daylight Tuesday of 240 gallons of whiskey. A man who gave his name as Conway Johnson, 22, pursued, apparently by guards or officers, was wounded in the neck and captured. It was said at prohibition headquarters here today that warrants would be issued for at least six men. Available information indicates that two federal guards, two detectives, a store keeper and a private guard were on duty at the distillery when the whisky was taken.

MERCHANTS PLAN
HARVEST FESTIVAL

Association Adopts Articles of Confederation, Rating Cards Issued to Members

Articles of incorporation were approved and adopted at the meeting of the Middlesboro Merchants' Association held at the Elks' Home last night. The application will be filed with the county clerk at Pineville and with the secretary of state at Frankfort and the granting of the charter will make the association a strong, legal corporation.

The general purposes of the proposed corporation as set forth in the articles of incorporation are: To promote commerce and business; to give a credit rating on Middlesboro patrons and to diffuse by bulletin or otherwise information regarding credit relations; to settle differences between its members; to buy, sell, hold or lease property. It will exist as a corporation for a period of seventy-five years, according to one clause of the instrument and this can be modified only by the consent of seventy-five per cent of the members. There shall be five directors and the officers are president, vice-president and secretary.

Rating cards were issued to the members for the purpose of recording the rating of each of their customers. When these are all collected, it was explained, the data will be compiled on a permanent record and each member will be given a copy.

Preliminary plans for the Harvest Festival next fall were discussed. It will be, in general, similar to the event of last year. Some of the members were in favor of adding livestock to the exhibits but this was overruled. S. M. Reams is chairman of the festival committee. A committee has been appointed to compile a premium list. The meeting last night was well attended, twenty or more members being present. Sam Anderson was chairman.

He said any evidence of criminal acts will be laid before the Department of Justice.

NO "PERFECT GIRL" APPLIED
CANTS IN BELL COUNTY

PINEVILLE, Apr. 11.—There are no young women in Bell county who are ambitious to be chosen as the most physically perfect woman in the state it would seem, since no applications have been filed with Dr. George Hays, health officer.

Application blanks have been received by him and any girl between the ages of 16 and 30 are eligible. The physical examination is free and if it should not be convenient to see Dr. Hays another doctor may be deputized to take the measurements.

The object of the contest is to stimulate interest in medical and public health education. The date of the pageant, which will be given in Louisville, is from April 26 to May 5. At this time the most perfect Kentucky girl will reign supreme as "Hygieia", the goddess of health.

M. E. CHURCH EVANGELIST IS INTERESTING SPEAKER

A large congregation was present at the First M. E. church last night and heard Rev. O. H. Callis' sermon on "Raising the Dead." The raising of Lazarus was the theme of the text. The choir of fifty voices under the leadership of Prof. B. V. Grenfell furnished excellent music. The afternoon service was held at 3 o'clock today. The subject of the sermon tonight will be "Jesus at a Wedding."

The preaching of Rev. Callis is not denominational in tone; he speaks on principles and essentials of Christianity rather than doctrines. His ideas are original and his delivery is forceful and dramatic.

A THOUGHT

And this is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light because their deeds were evil.—St. John 3:19.

Only the worm of conscience con-sorts with the owl. Sinners and evil spirits shun the light.—Schiller.

A PUBLIC HAZARD

The swinging bridge, stacked for dar-ing juvenile feats of courage and dex-terity, still spans the canal near the M. H. S., though action for its removal was taken by the city council more than a month ago. The reasons ad-vanced by the councilman making the motion were that he had seen child-ren crossing it when the rushing torrent almost reached it. Our city government knows that it is a dan-gerous condition and has ordered its removal but why has not the order been carried out?

School boys daily cross the bridge, not for the convenience it affords but for the thrill attending such an act. With the boards entirely missing for perhaps twelve feet of its surface and with the oscillating motion caused by the crossing it is indeed a stunt well calculated to satisfy the youthful craving for excitement. Not only do the boys walk across it but they use it for exhibition purposes as well. One was seen to hang by a board and "skin a cat" a few days ago. The successful emulation of feline torture will doubt-less encourage the boy to attempt even more difficult and thrilling tricks. It is not likely that a person would be killed or seriously injured by falling from the bridge while the water is at its present low stage but an injury of some kind would be the inevitable result.

An understanding of a boy's nature is, in itself, proof that they cannot keep off the bridge so the only logical solution of the problem is the removal of the hazardous, unsightly and un-necessary obstruction. The city council has done its duty in ordering the nuisance abated but the executive de-partment of the city, if there be such a department, should take charge of the matter and carry out the municipal order.

PENNSYLVANIA'S COAL TAX

In a recent issue we printed an able argument from W. E. Davis, president of the Midland Mining Company, Lex-ington, Ky., why a tonnage tax should not be placed on Kentucky coal as it comes from the mines.

He pointed out that only a half truth had been told and the more ju-ricious half, when Kentucky papers stated that Pennsylvania taxed coal, therefore, Kentucky should do the same.

As a matter of fact, Pennsylvania produces two distinctly different kinds of coal, anthracite and bituminous. On anthracite Pennsylvania has a mon-opoly, but its bituminous coal has to compete with coals of other states. A tax on anthracite is probably passed on to the consumer, but, if a tax were placed on bituminous it would be paid by the operator, for, as he is in com-petition with other states, which do not impose such a tax, the price could not be added to the mine price of the coal. Therefore, a tax on bituminous coal would only be a burden on the operator and an injury to the indus-try as a whole, and all those engaged in it, either as an operator or worker, and ultimately would effect all job-bers and manufacturers who sell sup-

AT THE TRAIN, WHERE LESLIE HAMILTON AND HER FATHER MEET HER FIANCE, JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT

As Joseph Graves Hamilton helped his daughter from the motor he knew he was facing one of the hard knots of his life. He had unraveled many in his business career, but never before had one seemed to touch the happiness of anyone of his family.

He could not help smiling even if the smile was grim as he watched John Prescott step down from the train.

The young man was a splendid type of young America. Again Joseph Hamilton whispered to himself: "The boy will be all right if he doesn't get slanted the wrong way." He deter-mined that no one should interfere with Leslie's happiness if he could help it.

Leslie ran forward impetuously—she made no concealment of her pride, her happiness, her love. Straight in-to her lover's arms she went like a homing bird to its nest.

"Oh John, I have been so lonely. Did you sit down and think of me every minute when you were not im-mersed in that tiresome old business? We will never be parted again, will we?"

For answer John Prescott kissed the bright hair that rested just be-low his chin.

Joseph Graves Hamilton frowned. "Characteristic of the sex," he granted to himself. "When a man does not answer a woman and still wishes to pacify her. Too much practice I am afraid."

He walked forward just as Sydney Carton, who had interrupted Leslie's smiling against the business that had taken John away, was saying: "One cannot help but admire your devotion to the least details of any business you have in hand, old man. I must say, however, that I would not have gone back on such business if I were going to marry Miss Hamilton."

Leslie's father's eyes narrowed. "There is something doing and that young chap knows it and he is trying to give him a sly dig, for even he doesn't approve of it," was his inward comment. Then he smiled to him-self as he thought how easy it was to disapprove of the other fellows pec-cadilloes.

John Prescott turned to Leslie's father, still clasping her in his arms. The older man held out his hand. "My boy, this trip at this time should show your firm that to you their interests are paramount."

Again Sydney Carton interrupted, "Oh, Mr. Hamilton, you may be sure that Jack stands A-1 with those who called him in for this conference."

John's blush registered approval on Leslie's father's mind. "The boy isn't too young to be callous," he said to himself as John Prescott, turning to his friend answered decisively "That'll do, Syd. Don't pile it on too thick."

This also registered in Hamilton's brain, something perhaps different from that which it suggested to the others of the party, for from their faces he discerned that all of them were admiring John's modesty, while to him the double meaning of the ex-planation flashed clearly and keenly immediately.

"Gad! He's clever. He has told his friend to shut up and made the rest of us think that he hates flattery. By the living Jehosaphat, I believe that boy doesn't want, at this moment, to be flattered, and I am pretty darn sure that he doesn't want his friend to talk," was his reaction.

At this moment Mr. Hamilton caught the eye of Beatrice Grimshaw. "That girl knows too much," he mut-tered to himself. Then he added, "I wonder if she read that telegram?"

Again he looked at the girl and de-cided that she wouldn't make any trouble anyway.

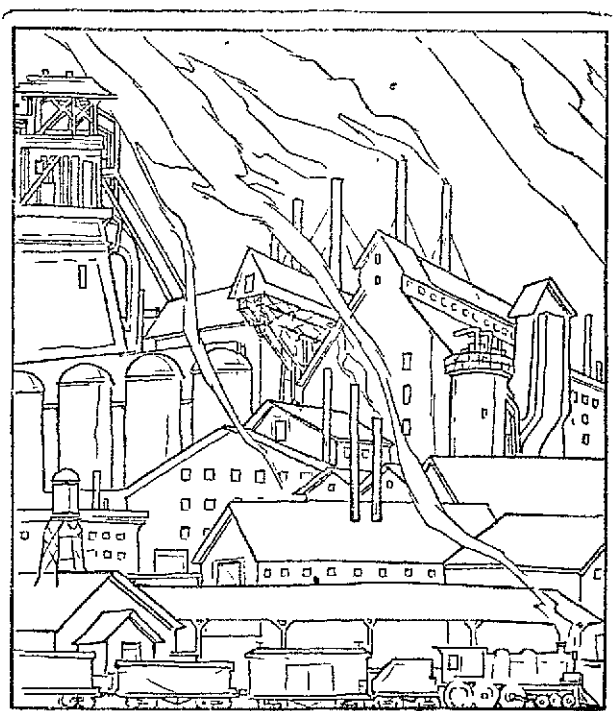

He found himself listening to his wife. Joseph Hamilton had never ceased to admire his wife. He had never had a thought for any other wo-man since their marriage. Consequent-ly he would not be very lenient to a man who was not absolutely true to his daughter. And yet Joseph Hamil-ton knew the world. He had great tolerance and he thoroughly approved when Mrs. Hamilton said:

"John, my boy, we have all missed

TODAY'S RECIPES

MAPLE CREAM CANDY

Place three cups of maple syrup, one cup of cream and a quarter cup of butter in a sauce pan over the fire and stir until it reaches a boiling point. Then place over simmering burner or on back of range where it will boil gently until a soft ball can be formed with the fingers when some of the sirup has been dropped into cold water. When this can be done, remove from the fire, cool and then beat until thick and creamy. Stir in one cup of nuts preferably pecans, add one-half teaspoon of vanilla and pour into a buttered or oiled pan. Cut when cold, into squares.

Caution: Do not beat too long a time, or the candy will be hard instead of creamy.

This candy can also be made successfully with brown sugar.

It's usually a sign of sick kidneys, especially if the kidney action is disordered, passages scanty or too frequent. Don't wait for more serious troubles. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills. Read this Middlesboro man's testimony.

 "OUR LITTLE GIRL" by Robt. A. Simon (Holt and Liveright).
 "BARNUM" by M. R. Werner (Harcourt, Brace and Company).

Others briefly mentioned are "The World in Falseface," by George Jean Nathan (Knopf); "R. U. R." by Karel Capek (Doubleday, Page); "Challenge," by V. Sackville-West (Doran); "Annals of Music in America," by

P. T. BARNUM

Henry C. Lahee (Marshall Jones Co.) and "Town and Gown," by Lynn and Lois Montross (Doran).

NEW YORK, April 11—Two recent books attracting wide and favorable attention are linked together by coincidence of circumstances. They are "Barnum," by M. R. Werner, and "Our Little Girl," by Robert Simon. Each is the respective author's first work and the authors were classmates at Columbia.

The coincidence goes further than that. Each is a biographical interpretation of life. "Barnum" is the actual story of the one and only P. T. Barnum, circus man, "our little girl" is the fictional story of several characters, but chiefly about a girl with ambition but without talent for a musical career. The facts of Barnum's life are in many instances stranger than fiction. The delineation of character in "Our Little Girl" is often so authentic that the reader is convinced that the author has given some of his close acquaintances fictional names and set down actual events and conversations.

In neither case does the author seek to subject himself into the running story. The characters speak for themselves.

P. T. Barnum was born at Bethel, Conn., in 1810. He had been a farm boy, lottery ticket seller, store clerk, bartender, newspaper editor, boarding house keeper and groceryman when at 25 he bought his first freak, an aged black woman, Joice Heth, who was represented to be 161 and was advertised as the first woman to have dressed the infant George Washington.

He made money, but believing all men honest, was relieved of most of it by dishonest men. At 31, broke, he sold Biblical illustrations, but others swindled him out of his profits even in that enterprise.

He wrote advertisements for a Bowers theater for a time, receiving $1 a week. Then he engineered a deal by which he came into possession of the American Museum in New York. A friend asked him what he had to buy the museum with. "Brass," answered Barnum, "for silver and gold I have none."

One of Barnum's first acquisitions for the museum was a model of Niagara Falls. The falls were 18 inches high and P. T. advertised the novelty as "The great model of Niagara Falls."

ROBERT A. SIMON

With Real Water." Honeymooners who could not afford the real thing went to the museum instead.

Barnum's greatest curiosity was the Egece Mermaid. It had the head of a monkey and the body of a fish and was advertised as having been captured by Japanese fishermen. He ranged it with animal species "forming connecting lengths in the great chain of animated nature." That was 17 years before Darwin wrote "The Origin of Species."

Barnum brought Jenny Lind to America not so much for monetary profit as to add something to his reputation other than the epithet of "humbug." At that time Barnum was a very wealthy man, having amassed a fortune through exhibiting General Tom Thumb and other midgets in America and Europe. The 93 concerts which Jenny Lind gave in nine months under Barnum's management grossed $712,161.34, of which $176,675.09 went to her.

Barnum died in 1890. His life as Werner sets it down is an extensive chronicle of American history covering a period of 80 years.

Simon's fictional heroine in "Our Little Girl" represents a modern bumbler who finds her counterpart in hundreds of others. His book is a satire on would-be clammers, who use exploitation methods as rank as those of Barnum but more cleverly hidden. One is led to believe by his book that anyone can give a recital in a New York concert hall and have their names in the papers and in electric lights if they have the hard cold cash to pay for it.

Turning The Pages

Message from D. D. Wilmington, N. C., reads, "Won't you please say a kind word for Temple Bailey's 'The Dim Lantern'?" It is one of the most popular books in this section of the country. Copies are hard to get. Perhaps it was too clean in tone to receive much notice in New York.... George Jean Nathan has been called the "Broadway Smart Aleck." George Ade said he reminded him of somebody with a verbal roman candle in each hand. Nathan's new book, "The World in Falseface," is not so smart alecky as some of his past writings on the theater.... Of recent poetry I like best "The Puritan's Ballad," by Elinor Wylie.... The exact intention of Karel Capek in "R. U. R.," the Theater Guild play, was not entirely clear to many who saw it. They may now study the ism at their leisure. The play is out Czechoslovakian satire on industrialism in book form.... John Farrar, editor of The Bookman, believes that "Challenge," by V. Sackville West, is superior to Hergesheimer's "The Bright Shawl," which it resembles in plot and theme. Deems Taylor says that "Annals of Music in America," by Henry C. Lahee, is a "fascinating bird's-eye view of our musical history.".... Here are some of the chapter titles in "Town and Gown" by Lynn Montross and Lois Seyster Montross: "The Fussy Girls Who Pet, The First Man, and Dry As Dust." Perhaps you have by now surmised that it deals with college life.

RECOVERY

"My wife suffered for five years and practically lived on toast and hot water. Doctors said she would have to be operated for gall stones. A lady advised her to try May's Wonderful Remedy and after taking 4 bottles over two years ago, she has been entirely well ever since." It removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract, and allays the inflammation which cause practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded at Lee's Drug store and druggists everywhere.

All of us know what we would do this spring if we could afford it.

Make THE Backyard Pay

Nothing so improves the surroundings of a house as does a good lawn. The establishment of a lawn, however, is not an easy matter, in fact the lawn often has to be "made" right from the start.

The top layer of earth around the dwelling usually consists of the clay or rough, stoney material taken from the bottom of the cellar. This material could hardly be dignified by that term "soil" and while it may be soil in the making it requires considerable making before anything will grow upon it.

The first step in making a lawn is to grade the ground and remove or deeply bury all rocks. The top three or five inches should be made just as fine as possible.

Fertilization

The second step is to provide something in the soil on which grass can grow. The ideal method is to put on a top dressing two or three inches thick of good soil or loam. A heavy application of stable manure, if it can be obtained, will add organic matter or humus and supply plant food.

Heavy clays may be lightened by mixing with coal ashes or sand. But lime applied to the surface at the rate of 25 to 40 pounds to the square rod and mixed with the top three inches of earth is undoubtedly the best treatment of heavy clays.

Coarsely ground bone meal is one of the best fertilizers for mixing with the soil in making a lawn and may be applied at the rate of 20 pounds to the square rod on heavy soils and 10 pounds on light or sandy soils. All fertilizer should be well mixed with the top soil.

New House Laws

Considerable difficulty is experienced in getting a good lawn under such adverse conditions as are usually found about newly built houses. One method is to go into some field where there is a good covering of grass, cut the sod in sections and relay it where the lawn is wanted. This is expensive and besides it is not always possible to get good sod.

All things considered, it is generally best to sow a good grade of lawn grass seed and then give special attention to watering and care of the young grass until it is ready for the lawn mower. The mixture of seed will vary with the locality, but Kentucky blue grass, redtop and white clover is a common mixture. Four or five pounds of this mixture will seed a lawn 50 by 100 feet in size. To keep the lawn in trim a little seed and some fertilizer should be sprinkled over the surface every spring.

Crabgrass is the common enemy of lawn grasses and it means a fight to prevent its taking possession. Where dandelion and plantains give trouble sow plenty of grass seed at frequent intervals and keep the lawn clipped closely to prevent these plants seeding.

CHANGE OF LIFE

Florida Lady Was in a Miserable Condition, But Says She Found Cardui Helpful, and Got Well.

Altus, Fla.—In explaining how she found Cardui so helpful during change of life, Mrs. Ella M. Bailey, of Route 2, this place, said:

"I became so weakened it was an effort for me to get around. I knew what was the matter, but I felt like I couldn't give up."

"I just dragged, and I certainly was nervous. I was so restless I could not sit down long—yet so weak I couldn't get about. It is a most miserable and such a helpless feeling."

"I would get depressed and out of heart."

"I began to feel, after awhile, there was no use to try to get well. This is all wrong, for it makes a person worse."

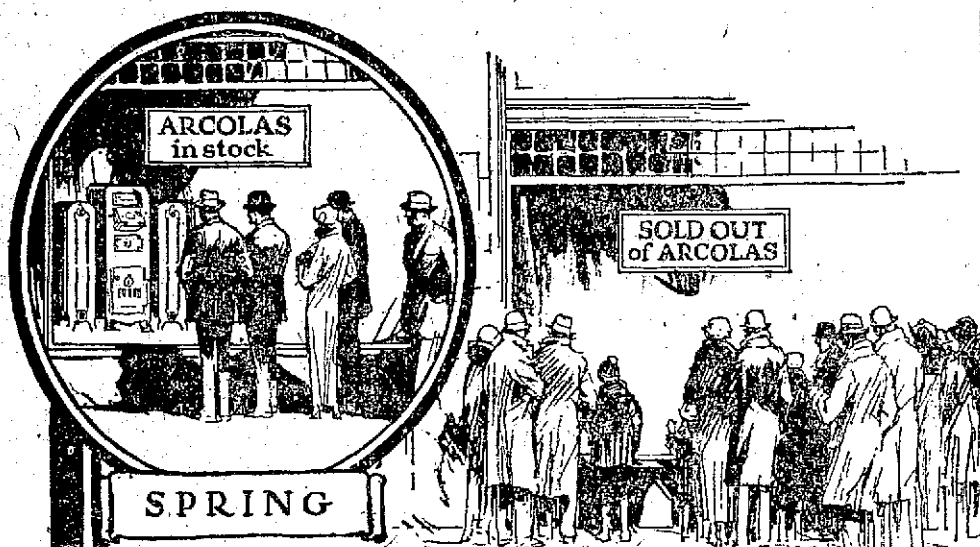

"I had heard of Cardui, and thought it might strengthen me. A neighbor had used it with good results."

"I took one bottle (of Cardui), then I saw I wasn't so nervous, so kept it up."

"Gradually the nervousness left me. I began to eat and sleep better. Was soon well, and all right. Cardui did wonders for me, and I certainly do recommend it."

Thousands of other women have written, to tell of the beneficial results obtained by taking Cardui, and to recommend it to others.

5,000

disappointed home-owners tell you to buy ARCOLA NOW

THE BUILDING BOOM started in 1921. That Fall, 5,000 home-owners who had ordered radiator warmth with ARCOLA were disappointed.

Why? Because they waited until Fall to place their orders.

This year three times as many homes are being built as in 1921. Yet no more ARCOLAS can be produced this year than in 1921 because our factories are already over-taxed with orders for larger IDEAL Boilers.

ARCOLA is radiator and boiler in one—different from any others. It is connected with a genuine American Radiator in each room. Warm bed-rooms! Breakfast in a warm dining room! Protection for the children from colds and grippe!

The 5,000 home-owners who were disappointed in 1921 are 5,000 reasons why you should let your Heating Contractor give you an estimate now.

The Railroads are the Country's Largest Buyers-of many products, principal among which are coal, lumber, iron and steel. Here are some figures that should impress every reader of this newspaper. The railways purchase and consume one fourth of all the coal mined in the United States, one fourth of all the lumber, and from thirty to forty per cent of all the iron and steel output.

There is no single industry or business in all America that so vitally affects the immediate welfare of all classes of people, because when the actual number of railroad employees is supplemented by the workers in industries largely dependent on the carriers,—the great business of transportation becomes the backbone of our industrial life.

Keep these and other facts about railroads in mind when you read sensational newspaper and magazine articles attacking the railroads and suggesting "improvements". If readers of this newspaper are further interested in securing authentic information about the railroads and their operation, they are invited to address the Bureau of Railway Economics, Washington, D. C. If the question concerns the Louisville & Nashville Railroad in particular, address the general offices of the company at Louisville, Ky.

STRENGTH AND SAFETY IN THE BODY OF STEEL

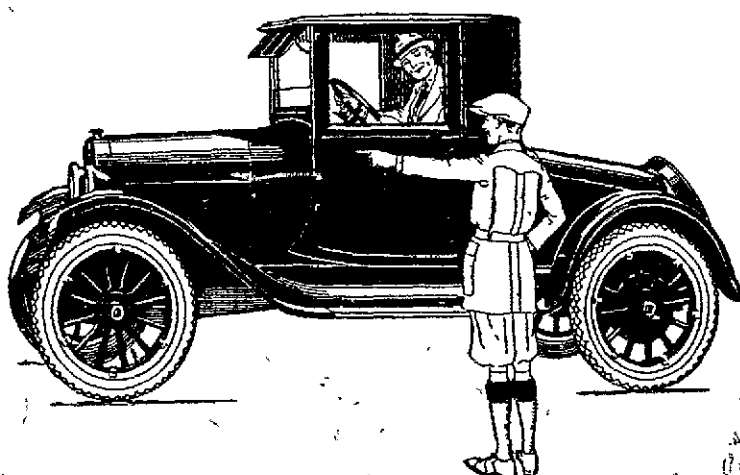

If you could see the main body structure of Dodge Brothers Business Coupe before the enamel is baked on, and before the interior is furnished, you would be profoundly impressed by its strength.

You would see that every panel, every pillar, and every rib is steel—that even the door sills and window mouldings are steel.

You would see that all of these parts and sections are electrically welded together into one staunch steel body, with no bolts or rivets to work loose, nothing to rattle or squeak or warp.

And you would realize that, like the all-steel Pullman coach, this unique construction—originated by Dodge Brothers for this car—represents the last word in protection to passengers—the ultimate achievement in closed car sturdiness.

RICHARD HALE COMPARED TO AMATO BY NEW YORK PAPER

Richard Hale, noted baritone singer, will give a concert in Middlesboro, at the central school auditorium, next Tuesday evening. Mr. Hale is a musician of exceptional talent and he has given successful concerts in all of the big cities in the east and middle west. The following quotation from the New York American, after his last annual concert there, illustrates the regard in which he is held in New York.

"How much like Amato! That was the first thought one had in listening to Richard Hale at his song recital yesterday afternoon. It goes without saying that Mr. Hale has a good voice, else it would hardly awaken memories of Amato. It is a baritone voice of grave and manly quality and very considerable range. Mr. Hale's equipment was not confined to tone. He disclosed intelligence, musical understanding and taste."

FORD LEAVES STREET AND PLUNGES THROUGH FENCE

Dominated by the mischief which has ever characterized its breed, Ford No. 162351 suddenly left the street and ran through the fence and into the garden of J. E. Vowels on Twentieth street near the postoffice. The driver was a boy but his identity is not known.

After the Ford had been coaxed back to the street it was abandoned by the youthful driver and sat there near the postoffice. The traffic officer, on hearing of the occurrence, made it a point to keep his eye on the car the remainder of the day, a fact which probably kept the owner away from it so long. It is thought that an exhaustive search of certain records will eventually disclose the identity of the owner of 162351.
